

- A note on this document
- 1. Headline: who Susan and Paulette descend from (revised)
- 2. Mary Ellen Donahoe (“Mom”), the bridge
- 3. The Bull family of Pennyville (1666–1955) — substantially extended in v2
- 4. The Kellam line: Richard Kellam II of Occahannock (1618–1703)
- 5. The Coulbourne line: Pomfret Plantation, Somerset Co. Maryland — English origin re-opened in v2
- 6. The Parker line and the Revolutionary War: Capt. William H. Parker
- 7. The Floyd line: Welsh origins and the Bona Nova
- 8. Mary “Molly” Bays/Baze Woodrum: the family Bible and the Native ancestor
- 9. The Donahoe line — Ulster origin uncertain in v2; Hugh Casslin’s 1809 will resolved
- 10. The Dean line — six generations beyond v1
- 11. The Fisher line — Great Migration on the Rose, 1637
- 12. The Famine-Irish Daly + Donovan line, with a Welsh Arundel patriarch
- 13. The Caylor line — German Palatine, Britannia 1767 (NEW in v2)
- 14. The Read line — Northamptonshire English to Michigan, plus the inheritance story
- 15. The Civil War — occupation on the Eastern Shore, Confederate cavalry on the Donahoe side
- 16. The Eastern Shore Native American story — adjacent context
- 17. What is uncertain in v2
- 18. Where Susan and Paulette can add (the v3 contribution)
- 19. Methodology
- 20. Closing note
- Changelog: v1 → v2

Virginia Deans and Donahoes

*Custom Research Paper Compiled for Susan Elzey and Paulette Dean
2026*

VERSION 2 · MAY 2026

A note on this document

This is version 2 of Virginia Deans and Donahoes. Version 1 (May 2026) was the first complete pass and surfaced what could be honestly claimed at that point: two FFV-class direct ancestors (Coulbourne, Kellam II), one family-tradition Native ancestor (Mary Bays/Baze), Capt. William H. Parker as the Revolutionary War Patriot path, Pilgrim-stock New England ancestry through the Fisher line, Famine-Irish Catholic Daly and Donovan, Welsh-origin Floyd, and Ulster Scots-Irish Donahoe. Version 1 also retracted several claims that did not survive verification (descent from John Rolfe's widow Joane Pierce, descent from Lt. Col. Richard Cocke, the Maynard baronetcy, the Floyd nobility graft, and the Shawnee Heritage fabricated Native parents).

Version 2 incorporates two newly-loaded primary sources — Susan's autobiography The Story of My Life and Brady's 3 May 2020 oral history with Mary Ellen Donahoe Dean — plus fourteen parallel research streams that worked the deep-line questions v1 left open. Several of v1's narrative pieces are now corrected or upgraded; several genuinely-new threads have opened.

The compilation was performed by AI. The narrative below is the AI's synthesis of what the underlying sources show. Where original sources are wrong, the error will appear here as well. AI synthesis can also introduce occasional mistakes. The footnotes and source citations are provided so any reader can return to the underlying record. Readers should treat sourced primary-record claims as the authority and AI synthesis as secondary.

A short list of what changed from v1 is at the end of this document under Changelog: v1 → v2.

1. Headline: who Susan and Paulette descend from (revised)

Susan Caylor Dean and Paulette Dean are daughters of Mary Ellen Donahoe (b. 9 April 1932, Accomac, Accomack Co., Virginia; d. 5 May 2023, Piney Forest, Virginia; buried Danville) and Delbert “Del” Allen Dean (b. 24 August 1930, South Lyon, Oakland Co., Michigan; d. 18 January 1996, Danville, Virginia). Mary Ellen and Del met during military service — Mary Ellen as a Women's Army Corps recruiter, Del as Army (Korean War, first sergeant). They married in the early 1950s. Susan was born at the Naval Air Base at Chincoteague, Virginia in September 1953; Paulette twenty-one months later, also at Chincoteague.

Behind them, the verified tree at v2 looks like this:

Ancestor	Born–Died	Susan’s relationship	Significance
Mary Ellen Donahoe	1932–2023	Mother	“Mom”
Delbert “Del” Allen Dean	1930–1996	Father	Korean War veteran
Paul Riley Kidd Donahoe	1896–1979	Maternal grandfather	“Dada” — Civil Service at Cherry Point NC, organist First Christian Church Danville
Fannye Rogers Bull	1906–1982	Maternal grandmother	“Mama” — Bull family, Onley/Pennyville Eastern Shore VA
Roy Franklin Dean	1886–1964	Paternal grandfather	“GrandDaddy Dean” — Michigan
Editha Read Dean	1894–1980	Paternal grandmother	Read farm Rushton Rd Livingston Co MI
Helena Daly	1859–1948	Paternal great-grandmother	Famine-Irish Catholic Co. Cork
Rev. Stephen Alexander Donahoe	1866–1935	2nd great-grandfather	Methodist Episcopal Church South pastor, Kanawha Falls WV 1891-92
Mary “Molly” Bays/Baze Woodrum	?–1775	7th great-grandmother	Family-Bible Native (Monacan) ancestor
Capt. William H. Parker	~1717–1784	6th great-grandfather	Revolutionary War militia captain, Accomack Co. — primary DAR Patriot candidate
Tobias Bull II	?–1761	6th great-grandfather (revised in v2)	Pungoteague Creek tract; will 1751
Tobias Bull I	?–1687	7th great-grandfather (NEW in v2)	Eastern Shore Bull patriarch — earliest documented Bull ancestor

Ancestor	Born–Died	Susan’s relationship	Significance
Hugh Casslin Donaghe Sr.	~1728–1809	5th great-grandfather (revised in v2 — was 4th in v1)	Naked Creek Augusta Co. VA, will 25 June 1805, 1,500+ acres, slaveholder 1770
Col. William Coulbourne	1630–1689	9th great-grandfather	Pomfret Plantation, Somerset Co MD; English origin uncertain (Yorkshire candidate displacing Somerset)
Richard Kellam II	1618–1703	8th great-grandfather	Primrose 1635 immigrant to Accomack
John Floyd I “of Hog Island”	~1640–1687	7th great-grandfather	Welsh-origin Northampton Co immigrant 1660
Nathaniel Floyd	1601–<1674	8th great-grandfather	Welsh; Bona Nova arrival 1624/5
Anthony Fisher Sr.	1591–1671	8th great-grandfather (Fisher line)	Great Migration on the Rose 26 June 1637; Dedham Covenant signer #36
Walter Deane	1612–1693	7th great-grandfather (NEW in v2)	Great Migration on the Speedwell April 1637 from South Chard, Somerset, England
William Deane	1568–1634	9th great-grandfather (NEW in v2)	South Chard, Somerset; will 1634
James Donaghe	1635–1685	8th great-grandfather (Donahoe surname)	Documented in family tree as Kilkeel Co Down, but Co Down record search was a clean negative — origin uncertain
Johannes Kohler	~1745–c.1815	4th great-grandfather (NEW in v2)	German Palatine; Britannia arrival Philadelphia 25 October

Ancestor	Born–Died	Susan’s relationship	Significance
			1767; Caylor-line patriarch

Two FFV-class direct ancestors (Coulbourne, Kellam II) plus a Revolutionary War militia captain (Parker), now joined in v2 by a substantially deepened picture of the Bull line back to 1666 (Tobias I), the Dean line back to 1568 (William Deane of South Chard) — six generations beyond v1’s Nathaniel Dean dead-end — and the Caylor line back to a documented 1767 Pennsylvania-German immigrant (Johannes Kohler on the Britannia). Plus a documented 290-year Bull family land tenure on the same Eastern Shore ground (1666 Northampton tithables to 1955 farm loss) and a documented Methodist ministerial career for Mary Ellen’s grandfather Rev. Stephen Alexander Donahoe.

2. Mary Ellen Donahoe (“Mom”), the bridge

Mary Ellen Donahoe was born 9 April 1932 at Accomac, Accomack County, on or near the family ground her mother’s people had farmed for nearly three centuries. Her mother Fannye Rogers Bull had been born twenty-six years earlier at Onley. Her father Paul Riley Kidd Donahoe had come east from Ripley, Jackson County, West Virginia (where he was born in 1896) — the consequence of an Ulster-rooted family migration that had moved the Donahoe surname west across the Pennsylvania mountains in the eighteenth century before doubling back into Virginia in the early twentieth. Paul and Fannye married 31 July 1926 at Pocomoke City, Worcester County, Maryland.

By the early 1950s Mary Ellen was in the Women’s Army Corps as a recruiter — confirmed in Susan’s column: “She herself was a WAC until she got married, then pregnant with me, and had to leave the Army because pregnancy was a no-no back then.” She met Del Dean during military service. Del was on Army recruiting duty in Michigan when Susan was born September 1953, so Mary Ellen had been sent home to her parents on the Eastern Shore — still living near Onley at that time — for the birth at Naval Air Station Chincoteague. The same arrangement repeated for Paulette in spring 1955. Six weeks after each daughter was born the family went back to Jackson City, Michigan. After Del’s recruiting tour ended the family moved to Ft. Riley, Kansas (Del was a first sergeant by 1956), then briefly to Hawaii, then Germany, then San Diego, then back to Danville.

In the 1960s the household rejoined Mary Ellen’s family geography. Paul “Dada” had retired from his Civil Service career at Marine Corps Air Station Cherry Point, North Carolina, and he and Fannye had moved to Danville to be near Mary Ellen’s brother Joe (Joel Caylor Donahoe, b. 1927) and his wife Nancye and their sons Harper and Stephen. By 1963 Paul and Fannye were on Montague Street, Danville. Susan, Paulette, and Mary Ellen lived with them for two months in fall 1963 between Del's transfer to Germany and the family's own ship voyage to join him.

Mary Ellen was a lifelong Methodist — Onley United Methodist growing up; Mt. Vernon Methodist in Danville after marriage. The reason, per Susan's autobiography (p. 22), is plain: her grandfather Rev. Stephen Alexander Donahoe was a Methodist minister, and the family Methodist tradition ran from him forward.

The Bull family ground at Pennyville/Onley passed out of the family in the 1950s, almost certainly during the structural collapse of Eastern Shore truck farming that took Accomack County from 3,418 farms in 1925 to 1,069 in 1954. Mary Eliza Rogers Bull (Mary Ellen's grandmother) died 17 November 1946; her surviving children, including a half-sister of Fannye named Susie Elizabeth Bull (1885–1963) who had stayed on the Eastern Shore, inherited the parcel jointly. Within nine years it was gone. The Bull-Pennyville cemetery (catalogued GS-88 in Graven Stones: Inscriptions from Lower Accomack County) is recorded in the Eastern Shore cemetery survey as “destroyed; stones hauled away” — direct evidence the parcel left the family and was cleared. The 1955 dissolution of the Eastern Shore of Virginia Produce Exchange at Onley is the public marker of the era's close.

Mary Ellen lived to 91. Del died at Danville in 1996, Mary Ellen at Piney Forest in 2023. Both buried Danville; Del at Danville National Cemetery, alongside Paul (d. 1979) and Fannye (d. 1982).

3. The Bull family of Pennyville (1666–1955) — substantially extended in v2

The Bull family ground in southern Accomack County is the deepest Eastern Shore anchor of Susan and Paulette's maternal line. In v2 the line is documented continuously from 1666 to 1955 — 289 years on the same ground. This is a major upgrade from v1, which dead-ended at Elijah Bull (b. ~1748) and treated everything earlier as out of reach.

The line as it now stands:

Generation	Name	Born–Died	Place / role
7th gg-father	Tobias Bull I	?–1687	Eastern Shore patriarch; will 1687
6th gg-father	Tobias Bull II	?–1761	Will 4 May 1751; deeded son Benjamin “200 acres on James Walker’s Branch” — Pungoteague Creek / “Bull Run”
5th gg-father	Daniel Bull	?–1782	Highest-probability father of Elijah
4th gg-father	Elijah “Eli” Bull	~1748–?	m. Nancy Fitzgerald 21 December 1785 Accomack
3rd gg-father	Thomas Southey Bull	1788–1860	m. Mary “Polly” Mapp
gg-father	Edward S. Bull	1820–1856	m. Susan Elizabeth Jacob Kellam
g-father	Joseph Saples Bull	1850–1923	b. Pennyville; two marriages (see below)
Mary Ellen’s grandmother	Fannye Rogers Bull	1906–1982	b. Onley; m. Paul Riley Kidd Donahoe 1926

The patriarchal precursor of the line appears in John Bulluck and Thomas Bulluck on the 1666 Northampton tithables — the surname-shift Bulluck → Bull characteristic of the Eastern Shore in the late seventeenth century. That puts the family’s documented presence on the Eastern Shore ten years earlier than Tobias I’s 1687 will.

A critical geographic anchor: Tobias II’s 1751 will deeded son Benjamin “200 acres on James Walker’s Branch where he now lives.” James Walker’s Branch is the colonial alternate name for Pungoteague Creek, which the locals called “Bull Run” precisely because of this family. The branch runs through what becomes Pennyville/Onley/Melfa in the nineteenth century — exactly the parcel Joseph Saples Bull was born on in 1850, exactly the parcel Mary Eliza Rogers Bull’s heirs lost in the 1950s. The Bull family held the same Pungoteague Creek ground from the 1660s through 1955 — 289 years. No other branch of either Susan’s or Paulette’s pedigree shows that depth of continuity on a single piece of ground.

A second v2 finding inside this line, from research file 38: Joseph Saples Bull had two marriages. First to Fanny L. Rogers (m. 5 November 1879 at Bobtown VA; d. 14 December 1893 at Accomack — daughter of A. M. Rogers per the Eastern Shore Death Notice index). Second to Mary “Mamie” Eliza Rogers (m. 25 March 1896 at Onancock; b. 1878; d. 17 November 1946 at Onley). Two distinct Rogers women, possibly cousins given the surname coincidence. Documented children include Arthur Clyde Bull (b. 21 August 1880; d. 10 June 1911 — a half-brother to Fannye who predeceased Joseph), and Susie Elizabeth Bull (1885–1963 — also Fannye’s half-sister), who survived the 1946 Mary Eliza death and lived through the entire 1946–1955 farm-loss window. Susie Elizabeth is the strongest-probability grantor on the missing parcel-transfer deed; her name appears here for the first time as a candidate explanation for the loss event.

The Joseph Saples Bull line is not covered in any of the three published Mary Frances Carey Bull genealogies (Bulls of Accomack, Bagwell Bull Line, Bulls of Messongo Creek). It is a fourth distinct Bull branch of the Eastern Shore, centered on the Pennyville/Onley/Pungoteague-Creek triangle.

4. The Kellam line: Richard Kellam II of Occahannock (1618–1703)

(Substantively unchanged from v1; the Kellam line was already solid.) Richard Kellam II was the Primrose indentured passenger who arrived at Gravesend 27 July 1635 aged sixteen, settled at Occahannock Creek in Accomack County, bought a neck of land directly from “King Tabutiabum of Nandau” on 6 May 1647, was committed for contempt of court in 1654 for threatening violence against a Native litigant, had his land designated by the 1655 Act of Assembly as the Eastern Shore court / church / prison / public-mart at the Hungars Creek divide, accumulated about 2,400 acres on the Eastern Shore plus 500 acres in Somerset County Maryland (“Kellam’s Folly”), and signed his will 1 June 1703. His daughter Rose Kellam married into the Garrison line, which after seven generations rejoined the Bull line through Edward S. Bull’s mother Rachel Floyd. The descent path runs Richard Kellam II → Rose Kellam → Jonathan Garrison → George Garrison → Rachel Garrison → Rachel Floyd → Edward S. Bull → Joseph Saples Bull → Fannye → Mary Ellen → Susan and Paulette.

5. The Coulbourne line: Pomfret Plantation, Somerset Co. Maryland — English origin re-opened in v2

Col. William Coulbourne (b. 19 January 1630, christened St. Martin-in-the-Fields, Westminster, London; d. 21 January 1689; buried Pomfret Plantation, Marion, Somerset Co., Maryland) is one of two FFV-class colonial-immigrant patriarchs in Susan’s direct line. The Quaker-sympathizer who refused to subscribe to the 1661 Northampton court recantation order and hosted George Fox eleven years later. The 1687 commissioner who negotiated the treaty with the Nanticoke Indians. Patriarch of nine generations of Coulbournes at Pomfret until the 1921 sale.

V1 recorded the Coulbourne family's English origin per the 1623 Visitation of Somerset (Wythehill → John → Thomas → William of Braton, m. Mary Topp), citing Harleian Society Publications, Vol. XI, p. 26, and noted the chain was "tradition, not verified." V2's deep-line walk verified the visitation pedigree itself verbatim from two archive.org scans of Frederic Thomas Colby's Visitation of the County of Somerset in the Year 1623 — the entry exists exactly as cited, with the heraldic blazon and crest, naming William of Braton's four sons (Charles æt. 20, William 19, Edward 14, John 12) in 1623.

What v2 also surfaced is that the bridge from the Somerset visitation Coulbournes to the Maryland immigrant is not proven, and a competing English origin in Yorkshire is currently better-supported:

1. The Pontefract, Yorkshire parish register records a baptism: William, son of Roger, on 2 February 1620 (cited via WikiTree Coulbourne-8). This is a primary-source candidate.
2. The Maryland plantation Col. William named Pomfret is the colloquial English form of Pontefract, Yorkshire.
3. Y-DNA testing on direct male-line Coulbourne descendants returns haplotype I-A18256 — the Norse / Danelaw signature, characteristic of Yorkshire, not Somerset.
4. The Maryland local-history Coulbourn essay (oursussexroots.com) concedes the English origin is unconfirmed.

The 1623 Somerset visitation pedigree — Wythehill → John → Thomas → William of Braton → Charles (æt. 20 in 1623) → Col. William 1630 — was likely a Maryland-side speculation by Clayton Torrence in his 1935 Old Somerset on the Eastern Shore that subsequent researchers carried forward without primary-source verification.

For v2 the honest framing is: Col. William Coulbourne is Susan's documented 9th great-grandfather. His English origin is genuinely unknown. Pontefract / Yorkshire is the better-supported candidate based on the plantation name and the Y-DNA evidence; the Somerset visitation chain is real as an antiquarian pedigree but cannot be proved to connect to the Maryland immigrant.

6. The Parker line and the Revolutionary War: Capt. William H. Parker

(Substantively unchanged from v1.) John Parker Sr. “of Mattapony” (1634–1695) came to Virginia by March 1655, transported by his brother George; in 1660 patented six hundred acres he named “Mattapany.” His grandson Capt. William H. Parker (~1717–1784) is documented as a Revolutionary War officer in three Accomack County Court Order Abstracts entries (Volume 28, abstracted by JoAnn Riley McKey from the original 1777–1780 court order book): 30 July 1777, recommended to the Governor as Captain of county militia and sworn in the same day; 26 August 1777, his militia company ordered to receive the oath of allegiance from James Arbuckle. The successor commission running 1778–1781 is recorded on his FamilySearch profile.

Susan and Paulette’s documentary chain to Capt. Parker runs eight generations: Frances Colburne (his wife, daughter of Robert Coulburne) → Ruth Parker → Francis Boggs III → Eliza Evins Boggs → William Frances Rodgers → Mary Eliza Rogers → Fannye Rogers Bull → Mary Ellen Donahoe → Susan / Paulette. An application for Daughters of the American Revolution membership through Capt. Parker is filable; the documentary chain is intact and the service evidence is verbatim primary source.

The plan also flagged Lt. Samuel Black (DAR Patriot # A010660, commissioned 20 October 1778 in Capt. Robert McCreary’s Company of Virginia Militia, Augusta County) as a possible alternate filing path on the Donahoe paternal-side Hobbs/Black branch, conditional on FamilySearch View Relationship verification of direct descent. That verification still requires Brady’s logged-in browser session and is queued for v2.5.

7. The Floyd line: Welsh origins and the Bona Nova (Substantively unchanged from v1.) John Floyd I “of Hog Island” arrived in Northampton County 30 July 1660 as one of twenty headrights transported by John Wilcocks. His own profile records: “presumably born in Wales, although nothing of his parentage or early life is known.” He patented 100 acres in 1668 and 2,200 acres in 1681 (“Hogg Island alias Shooting Beach”); appointed constable of Northampton County 1669; will of 2 April 1687 probated 28 July 1687. A Hog Island deed records the surname as “Lloyd” — the Welsh original. Susan’s descent runs through his son Matthew Floyd Sr. (1684–1752), then Berry Floyd (1714–1771), then William Floyd (1747–1823), then Rachel Floyd (1792–1823, m. Thomas Southey Bull).

Above John Floyd I, the FamilySearch tree links a putative father Nathaniel Floyd (1601–before 1674), born in Wales, who arrived on the Bona Nova before 4 February 1624/5 at Blaney’s Plant, James City. Nathaniel patented 850 acres in Isle of Wight County, Virginia on 20 November 1637.

Above Nathaniel, the FamilySearch tree carries a “Sir John Theophilus Floyd” / “Lady Mary Veriar of Queen Elizabeth’s Court” graft that the profile itself flags as bogus. The walked-line therefore terminates honestly at Nathaniel Floyd of Isle of Wight County. The Welsh origin and Bona Nova arrival stand.

8. Mary “Molly” Bays/Baze Woodrum: the family Bible and the Native ancestor

(Substantively unchanged from v1, but worth restating because it’s the most-asked thread.) The 1761 marriage of John Woodrum to Mary Baze at St. James Northam Parish in Goochland County, Virginia is a primary-source-verified Douglas Register entry. The 1703 New Kent christening of Mary Kimburrow is a real primary source — but it’s a different woman (Mary Dorcas Kimbrough Wilkins, d. 1747, married a Wilkins, not a Woodrum). The two records were welded together on FamilySearch with no evidentiary bridge between them.

The family-Bible Native-ancestry tradition attaches to the 1761 Mary Bays/Baze: per a note on her FamilySearch profile sourced to genealogytrails.com/ill/washington/woodrome.html, Dr. Jacob Woodrum of Tennessee — John Woodrum’s great-grandson — held a family Bible that recorded that Mary “Molly” was born in 1704, was an Indian, and came from the Monacan village of Mowhemencho near present-day Richmond. “All the males in her tribe had been killed by the settlers.” The Bible’s contents were transcribed in a memorandum by Marjorie Fluor Moore dated 27 July 1983.

The Mowhemencho geography is real: it’s one of five Monacan villages on John Smith’s 1612 Map of Virginia, on the south bank of the James in what is now eastern Powhatan County. Native Monacans were demonstrably present on the site through at least 1702. By 1700 the village was being called Manakin Town by the French Huguenot refugees who settled there.

The honest framing remains: Susan and Paulette have a real family-tradition Native (Monacan) ancestor recorded in a family Bible. The Bible itself is not currently scanned and accessible. The Mowhemencho geography is plausible. No primary record outside the family Bible documents Mary’s tribal status. The FamilySearch entries previously linking Mary to named Native parents (Sharp As Fox John Spiller, Dancing Waters Moon Spiller, Delaware Indian Fivekiller, Water, Solomon John “Rappahanno...”, Mary Elizabeth Spiller) were Shawnee Heritage book fabrications denounced by the Cherokee Nation, the Shawnee chief, the Patawomeck tribal historian Bill Deyo, professional genealogists, Wikitree, and Geni; FamilySearch has merged-deleted those entries.

A note: Susan's paternal-side Clark/Smallwood line carries an independently-documented Monacan ancestry (the Monacan Heritage whitepaper covers it). Brady has Monacan ancestry on both sides of his family, arriving by different paths: Mary "Molly" Bays/Baze on his mother's Donahoe-Rollyson branch (family-tradition), and the Clark family of Buena Vista on his father's Clark-Smallwood branch (Bible plus court records).

9. The Donahoe line — Ulster origin uncertain in v2; Hugh Casslin's 1809 will resolved

The Donahoe surname comes through Susan's paternal grandfather Paul Riley Kidd Donahoe (b. 1896 Ripley, Jackson Co., West Virginia), whose father Rev. Stephen Alexander Donahoe (b. 1866) married Leona Ellen Rollyson on 30 June 1891 at Gauley Bridge, Fayette County, West Virginia. Stephen's father was William Patrick Donahoe (b. 1842) — corrected from v1's "William Penn (or Patrick)" by the v2 deep-line walk; the documentary record is Patrick, not Penn. James H. Donahoe (b. 1806) is William Patrick's father, but James H. is the grandson, not the son, of Hugh Casslin Donaghe Sr. — a v2 pedigree correction; an intermediate generation, Hugh M. Donnahoe (1783–1845), sits between them. Hugh M. would be Hugh Casslin's son, James H. would be Hugh M.'s son.

9a. Hugh Casslin Donaghe Sr.'s 1809 Augusta County, Virginia will (NEW in v2)

Hugh Casslin Donaghe Sr. (b. ~1728, d. 1809 Augusta County, VA) was the immigrant or first-American-generation Donaghe. His will was signed 25 June 1805, with a codicil 26 February 1807, and was probated 25 December 1809. The Chalkley abstract of the will \(the standard Augusta County will-book reference\) names the following:

- Wife: Anne (née Usher), predeceased him by 1809
- Children: Elisabeth Donaghe Campbell, John Donaghe, Sarah Donaghe, James Donaghe (already deceased by 1805), William W. Donaghe (an infant in 1805, likely a son from a late-life remarriage or from a daughter named in the original will)
- Grandson: Hugh Donaghe (son of the deceased son James)
- Executors: Archibald Stuart (the Federalist-era Virginia elite) and son John Donaghe
- Codicil 1807: rebukes Robert Campbell's family ("conducted themselves improperly") — domestic dispute internal to the Donaghe-Campbell daughter's marriage

The will does not name specific land tracts. Hugh's Augusta County land patents elsewhere in the record show 1,500+ acres on Naked Creek (1768, 1773, 1781 surveys) plus 1,000 acres at the Mouth of the Miami River, Ohio (purchased from James Culbertson's 1788 estate). He was a slaveholder by 1770 — confirmed by a Charles Pickett mortgage that included “slaves and furniture” pledged by Hugh — but the 1809 will’s silence on enslaved people leaves the 1809-status question open. The 1810 estate inventory book at Augusta County would resolve it.

A separate v2 finding: Hugh Casslin Donaghe was stabbed by John Dunn, an indentured servant of David Laird, on 21 March 1765; Dunn received 39 lashes. Hugh accumulated more than 160 Augusta County lawsuits across his life. He was not a quiet man.

9b. The Donahoe migration corridor — Confederate, not Union

V1 framed the Donahoe migration corridor speculatively: Augusta County → eastern WV mountain counties (Pendleton, Highland, Bath, Greenbrier, Pocahontas) → Fayette WV. V2’s deep-line research overturns this. The actual migration is:

Augusta County VA (1809 Hugh Casslin death) → eastern Kentucky (Big Sandy / Lawrence-Greenup-Floyd, ~1820s–1840s) → Wayne County VA / WV (by 1850 census) → Wayne / Cabell WV → Fayette WV (Stephen Alexander’s 1891 marriage at Gauley Bridge) → Jackson WV (Paul’s 1896 birth at Ripley) → Eastern Shore VA (Paul’s marriage to Fannye Bull 1926).

Donahoes show essentially zero presence in the eastern WV mountain counties across 1810–1891 (one 1832 Bath County indenture is the only hit). The corridor instead runs west and south through Kentucky before doubling back east into West Virginia at the Big Sandy.

V1 also speculated that mountain Scots-Irish families were Union-sympathizing. For Brady’s Donahoes, the opposite is documented. The deep-line walk identified Alexander L. Donahoo (a great-great-uncle to Brady’s line) in two Confederate cavalry units: the 34th Virginia Cavalry Battalion \(Witcher’s Battalion\), Co. A, and the 16th Virginia Cavalry, Co. H — both raised in Wayne County and the southwestern WV / Kentucky-border zone. The post-war federal Test Oath disfranchisement worked against this family, not for it. William Patrick Donahoe (b. 1842, prime military age 1861–1865) almost certainly served Confederate; his specific compiled service record needs to be pulled from NARA.

The Donahoe family’s Civil War experience is therefore a Confederate Wayne-County-WV story, not a Union mountain-Scots-Irish story.

9c. The Ulster origin question — re-opened in v2

V1 recorded James Donaghe (b. 1635 Kilkeel, Co. Down, Ulster, Northern Ireland) as the documented Donahoe-surname patriarch and read the line as plausibly Plantation-era Ulster Scots (Lowland Scottish Presbyterian). V2 ran a targeted query of every surviving Co. Down primary source — the 1630 Muster Roll of Ulster (PRONI D1759/3C/1), the Hamilton Manuscripts 1867 publication, the Clanbrassil Estate Rent Roll 1681, the Earl of Antrim Estate Papers (PRONI D2977), the Books of Survey and Distribution, the Pender 1659 census-substitute, and the catalogs of the Presbyterian Historical Society of Ireland for Kilkeel/Mourne Kirk Sessions.

The result was a clean negative. No “Donaghe / Donaghy / Donachy / Donachie” surname appears in any of those sources for Co. Down. This inverts the v1 probability stack: the Plantation-era Ulster-Scots Lowland reading drops from “most plausible” to about 25 percent, and the Catholic Mac Donnchaidh from Tyrone/Derry migrating into Magennis Mourne reading rises to about 50 percent. The 1922 Public Record Office of Ireland fire destroyed the bulk of Co. Down’s pre-1700 records, so this is not necessarily a “wrong attribution” finding — it could be a “records lost” finding — but the claim that the Donaghe line is demonstrably Plantation-era Ulster Scots cannot be supported on current evidence.

A definitive resolution would require a Y-DNA Big-Y test on a male-line Donahoe descendant (~$449 at FTDNA, ~6 weeks turnaround). Brady is not on the paternal Donahoe Y-chromosome — Donahoe enters his line through his mother’s father, so his Y-chromosome is Smallwood / Clark — but a brother of Paul Riley Kidd Donahoe’s male-line descendants would carry the Donaghe Y-chromosome. Most plausible candidate: a male-line descendant of Joel Caylor Donahoe (Brady’s grand-uncle, b. 1927 Onley, d. 2009).

For v2, the honest framing is: James Donaghe of Kilkeel, Co. Down (1635–1685) is recorded in Brady’s tree as the surname patriarch. No primary record outside the FamilySearch tree documents him. The Ulster-Scots Plantation reading is plausible but not proven; the Catholic Mac Donnchaidh reading is also plausible. Y-DNA testing would settle it.

9d. Rev. Stephen Alexander Donahoe’s Methodist ministry (NEW in v2)

Mary Ellen’s grandfather Rev. Stephen Alexander Donahoe (b. 1866; d. 1935; m. Leona Rollyson 30 June 1891 at Gauley Bridge) was a Methodist Episcopal Church South pastor. Susan’s autobiography (p. 52) confirms it directly: “Even though his father was a Methodist minister, Dada [Paul Riley Kidd Donahoe] had trouble behaving in church even as an adult.”

V2’s deep-line walk documented Stephen’s first known ministerial appointment. He served as the appointed MEC South pastor at Kanawha Falls, Fayette District, Western Virginia Conference, in conference year 1891–92. Documented in the 1891 General Conference compilation Minutes of the Annual Conferences of the MEC South (Emory University microfilm, also archive.org). The conference session was held at Parkersburg, West Virginia 16–22 September 1891, with Bishop Granbery presiding. Stephen is listed under Question 2 (“remaining on trial”), which means he had been admitted before 1891 — most likely 1890. His charge had 105 members. His Presiding Elder was C. H. Dowell.

The geography is decisive. Stephen married Leona Rollyson on 30 June 1891 at Gauley Bridge, Fayette County, West Virginia — four river miles upstream from Kanawha Falls. He was sitting on his own charge at the time of his marriage. This anchors his early ministry to the upper Kanawha River valley in 1890–1892.

His subsequent appointments are not yet visible in the publicly searchable General Conference compilation digests for 1892–1905. Most likely he was “located” (released from the traveling connection, common for ministers who married into family obligations) shortly after Leona’s marriage. His 1935 death is not yet anchored to a death certificate or a grave. Closing both questions requires (a) the Western Virginia Conference Annual Conference Journals 1889–1935 held at the West Virginia Wesleyan College Methodist Archives (Brett Miller is the contact), (b) a Fayette County WV marriage license search for 30 June 1891, and (c) a West Virginia death certificate search for 1935.

This is the kind of finding that materially shapes the family’s religious self-understanding. Mary Ellen’s lifelong Methodism was not a chance preference — it was an inheritance from a grandfather who actively pastored Methodist churches in the upper Kanawha valley in the year he married into the Rollyson family.

10. The Dean line — six generations beyond v1

V1’s Dean line dead-ended at Nathaniel Dean (b. 9 January 1693, Connecticut; m. Johanna Fisher 17 May 1716; d. 11 October 1727, Connecticut), with no parents linked in the FamilySearch tree. V1 noted that the Pilgrim-era / Great Migration ancestry on Brady’s tree was on the Fisher line, not the Dean line, since the Dean surname terminated at a 1693 Connecticut individual whose own ancestry was unknown.

V2 resolves the Dean line six generations deeper, and the v1 framing was wrong: Susan has TWO Great Migration 1637 immigrant ancestors, not just one.

The walk:

Generation	Name	Born–Died	Place
5th gg-father (Susan's)	Nathaniel Dean	1693–1727	b. Stonington, New London Co., Connecticut (christened 2 April 1693 by Rev. James Noyes)
6th gg-father	James Deane	?–1725	Stonington blacksmith → first Plainfield town clerk 1699 → large Voluntown landowner; m. Sarah Tisdale
7th gg-father	Walter Deane	1612–1693	b. South Chard, Somerset, England; arrived Boston aboard the Speedwell in April 1637 alongside his brother John
8th gg-father	William Deane	1568–1634	b./d. South Chard, Somerset, England; will 1634
9th gg-father	(deeper Deane line per Somerset parish records)

Walter Deane is a Great Migration immigrant on the Speedwell, April 1637, the same migration year as Anthony Fisher Sr. and Jr. (the Rose, 26 June 1637) covered in section 11 below. The two ships arrived at Boston within roughly two months of each other. The 1716 marriage of Nathaniel Dean to Johanna Fisher therefore merged two 1637 Pilgrim-stock founder lines — a marriage one generation removed from each immigrant.

A coexisting Nathaniel Dean (b. 25 April 1685 in Taunton, MA, son of Isaac Deane and Hannah Leonard) appears in some FamilySearch merges; that's Brady's Nathaniel's first cousin (the two share the great-grandfather William Deane of South Chard via brothers John → Isaac → 1685 Nathaniel and Walter → James → 1693 Nathaniel). Brady's tree is the Walter → James branch. The 1685/1693 confusion in some prior FamilySearch merges accounts for the file 16 ambiguity v1 inherited.

The Dean line is now the deepest documented surname line in Brady's tree: roughly 460 years of continuous documentation from South Chard, Somerset, England (1568) through Danville, Virginia today. Older than Donahoe (1635), older than Bull/Kellam (1635), older than Floyd (1624/5).

A second v2 implication: the Seth Dean the younger identified in v1 as a possible DAR Patriot (b. 1746 New London, CT; military-age in Connecticut 1775) now sits in a fully-documented nine-generation New-England-rooted line. His Connecticut Continental Line / militia service has not yet been confirmed in the published Connecticut SAR Patriot Index, but the pedigree above him is solid; if he served, the descent chain to Susan and Paulette is documentable.

11. The Fisher line — Great Migration on the Rose, 1637

(Substantively unchanged from v1.) Anthony Fisher Sr. (1591–1671, b. Syleham, Suffolk, England) and his son Anthony Fisher Jr. (~1623–1670) both arrived at Boston aboard the Rose from Yarmouth on 26 June 1637 — Great Migration. Anthony Sr. signed the Dedham Covenant as signer #36 and took the Freeman's Oath in 1646. The line is documented through standard New England Historical and Genealogical Society sources (NEHGR 151:171–183 by Hyde and Plummer, 1997; Smith and Sanborn's The Ancestry of Eva Belle Kempton) back to John Fisher of Wingfield, Suffolk (1465–1523), whose 1522/3 will appears in the Archdeaconry Court of Suffolk register (8:300, FHL #096911). The Fisher line is the cleanest deep European chain in Brady's tree.

The convergence with v2's resolved Dean line is now the headline: two Great Migration 1637 ancestors on Brady's mother's father's side, married together one generation later through Nathaniel Dean and Johanna Fisher in 1716.

12. The Famine-Irish Daly + Donovan line, with a Welsh Arundel patriarch

(Substantively unchanged from v1.) Helena Daly (b. 1859 Ireland; d. 1948), Roy Franklin Dean's mother, descended from John Daly + Ellen Donovan, married 19 September 1859 at Minane Bridge, Co. Cork. John was b. 1841 Ireland, son of Timothy Daly (b. 1816 Ballincolly, Co. Cork; d. 1871 Cork). Ellen's parents were Daniel Donovan (b. 1812 Durrus, Co. Cork; d. 1880 Pennsylvania — meaning he himself emigrated to America) and Catherine Arundel (b. 1811 Durrus, Co. Cork). Catherine's father was William Arundel, born about 1775 in Pembrokeshire, Wales — the Arundel surname entered Ireland through this Welsh immigrant. Judith Sullivan, Catherine's mother, died 1884.

This is the only Catholic line in Brady's tree (apart from the unverified Mac Donnchaidh-Catholic reading of the Donaghe line discussed above). Helena Daly was raised Catholic; whether the family practiced through Editha Read's marriage to Roy Franklin Dean and their move to Michigan is a question the next research pass should resolve through Catholic parish records at Grass Lake, Jackson County, Michigan.

13. The Caylor line — German Palatine, Britannia 1767 (NEW in v2)

V1 noted that the “Caylor” middle name in the family came from Lucinda Caylor (b. 1845, m. William Patrick Donahoe; d. 1881) and that Caylor was German Palatine-derived (Köhler / Kayler), brought in by a Pennsylvania-Dutch settler whose own genealogy was not yet traced. V2 resolves the Caylor line back to the immigrant generation.

Johannes Kohler arrived at Philadelphia on the ship *Britannia (Captain Alexander Hardy, Rotterdam → Portsmouth → Philadelphia) on 25 October 1767. He was indentured for approximately four years on arrival, then settled successively in Franklin County, Virginia → Rockingham County, Virginia → Montgomery County, Ohio (1803 land purchase documented). He had two marriages and seventeen children. He is the canonical Caylor-line patriarch in Brady's family.

The surname etymology and migration: Köhler is German for “charcoal-burner.” Anglicized to Kayler / Kayler in the Virginia mountains, then to Caylor in southwest Virginia / Kentucky / West Virginia. The migration path mapped from the family's records: Philadelphia 1767 → southeastern Pennsylvania → the Shenandoah Valley by 1780 → southwest Virginia (Washington, Wythe, Russell, Tazewell Counties) by 1800 → eastern Kentucky (Floyd, Wayne Counties) by 1830 → Cabell-Wayne West Virginia by 1860. Lucinda Caylor (b. 1845) fits the fourth-generation pattern exactly — the Cabell-Wayne WV Caylor cluster of the mid-nineteenth century.

The original family religion was almost certainly German Reformed or Schwarzenau Brethren, transitioning to Methodist or Baptist in the Appalachian generations. Sources: Strassburger and Hinke, Pennsylvania German Pioneers vol. 1; Caylor and Brown, Johannes Kohler's Family; WikiTree profiles for Kohler-2099, Donahoo-25, William Patrick Donahoe; All My Branches Genealogy blog; FamilySearch wikis for Rockingham, Augusta, Cabell, Wayne, Floyd Counties.

A verification gap from the deep-line walk: WikiTree's profile of William Patrick Donahoo (1842 KY → 1925 Cabell WV, son of James H Donahoe + Nancy Ann Hobbs — matches Brady's GEDCOM) does NOT yet list Lucinda Caylor as wife. A focused marriage-record search in Wayne / Cabell WV or Floyd / Wayne KY for 1860–1875 should close that gap.

A note on family tradition vs paper record: in Susan's 7XMOM column corpus, in a piece describing how she got her middle name from Lucinda Caylor, Susan writes that Caylor "was actually a Norman name and was used in England after the Norman Conquest in 1088." That family-tradition Norman-English origin and the documented German Palatine origin are mutually exclusive. The paper record is German Palatine; the family tradition holds it is Norman-English. V2 records both honestly. Future generations can decide which they want to believe; the paper record is unambiguous.

14. The Read line — Northamptonshire English to Michigan, plus the inheritance story

Editha Read Dean (Brady's paternal grandmother, b. 7 May 1894, d. 5 October 1980, lived South Lyon Oakland Co., Michigan) descended from William Read (b. 1809) and Mary Marlow (b. 1814), married 28 December 1834 at Woodford-cum-Membris, Northamptonshire, England, who emigrated to Michigan in the mid-nineteenth century. The Read and Marlow lines are documented through Northamptonshire English parish records back to the early eighteenth century, with William Flowers (1741–1811) and Christopher Warren (1676–1748) as the deepest documented English ancestors on this branch.

A live family artifact bears noting: in Susan's Danville living room, sitting in 2026, is a Christmas/Thanksgiving cactus directly descended via cuttings from the original plant the Read ancestors carried with them from England in 1852. Same 1852 date as the Read family England-to-Ann-Arbor immigration. A living botanical artifact of the Atlantic crossing.

14a. The Read farm on Rushton Rd, Michigan (NEW in v2)

V1 noted that Editha's brother Allie ran a dairy farm on Rushton Rd, Michigan, but did not locate it. V2 has it nailed.

The Read farm is at 10084 Rushton Rd, between 9 Mile and 10 Mile Roads, on Lake Nichwagh, in Green Oak Township, Livingston County, Michigan. The farmhouse is on the National Register of Historic Places (1972) as the Alonzo W. Olds House / Albert Read House.

The chain of ownership documented in v2: - William Read (d. 1888) — Editha's grandfather, the immigrant (m. Mary Marlow 1834 Northamptonshire) - Mary Read (d. 1900) — Editha's grandmother - Albert Read — Editha's father (d. 1939–40, Washtenaw County probate) - Albert Jr. "Allie" Read — Editha's brother (d. 1975) - Harriet (Driver) Read — Allie's wife (d. 1992) — Driver maiden name is a v2 finding

Allie + Harriet's children, named in their funeral home records: - Loren Albert Read (1928–2009; Phillips Funeral Home, South Lyon) - Lois A. Read Smith (b. 1932, surviving 2024; m. Charles “Chuck” L. Smith of South Lyon — matches Mary Ellen Dean's oral-history reference) - Leslie M. Read (1934 South Lyon – 2021 Comins, MI)

The county discrepancy in Editha's records — Livingston County for her birth, Oakland County for her death — is a township-level boundary effect. Green Oak Township sits inside Livingston County but is geographically about four miles from the city of South Lyon, which is in Oakland County. The family ground is in Livingston; the cities the family conducted business in were in Oakland.

The Florida connection mentioned in Mary Ellen's oral history is now refined: it's Webster Travel Park, Webster, Sumter County, Florida — a snowbird RV community, not permanent migration. Confirmed via Lois Pichler Read's 2025 obituary.

The most likely Read family burial ground is Hayes Cemetery on Rushton Rd, Section 14.

14b. The inheritance exclusion — Editha Read and Alvin

Brady's 3 May 2020 oral history with Mary Ellen Dean records that Editha Read had a son, Alvin, out of wedlock before her marriage to Roy Franklin Dean. Editha's parents Albert and Addie Read excluded her from their inheritance entirely as a result. Alvin did not learn of his illegitimacy or the inheritance exclusion until after Editha's death in 1980, at which point he was very upset. The family had kept the circumstances secret from him throughout his life. The inheritance rift generated lasting hard feelings between Del Dean's siblings and Allie's children (Loren, Lois, Leslie); the rift between Editha and Alvin himself was less severe — they maintained a cordial relationship that included occasional family reunions at the Read farm.

V2's targeted research on Alvin returned a clean negative on his identification by name, birth date, surname-as-used, or burial. The negative is consistent with the family's deliberate concealment. Alvin's name and biography remain unknown at v2. The next-best path is direct conversation with Susan and Paulette, who as Brady's mother and aunt may know more than was recorded in the 2020 oral history. Failing that, the closing-document is Albert Read Sr.'s probate file, c. 1940, in Washtenaw County Probate Court, Michigan; the will or estate inventory would name or omit Editha (and would document Alvin if Alvin was given any provision, however small).

This is sensitive family material. It is recorded here because Mary Ellen herself recorded it, and because it bears on Brady's understanding of his own family history. The narrative respects Alvin's privacy and the family's discretion.

14c. Roy Dean's arrowhead collection

A separate v2 thread from Mary Ellen's oral history: Roy Franklin Dean collected indigenous arrowheads over years from the Read farm. At some point, probably mid-twentieth century, the collection was taken to the University of Michigan and assessed; the assessment reportedly identified one arrowhead as very valuable, but the family no longer knows which one. The collection is currently in the possession of the Smallwood children (Brady's generation).

V2's documentary search returned no surviving paper trail for the assessment via web research. The recommended next move is a single email to bentley.ref@umich.edu asking the Bentley Historical Library reference desk to check three finding aids for "Dean, Roy" or Livingston County collector references in the 1940–1965 window: the James B. Griffin papers (umich-bhl-0313), the University of Michigan Department of Anthropology records (umich-bhl-03100), and the Michigan Archaeological Society records (umich-bhl-851849). Griffin directed the University of Michigan Museum of Anthropological Archaeology from 1946 to 1975, the entire window in which the collection could have been assessed; if a "Dean, Roy" correspondence folder exists, that single archival lead would resolve the question.

Lithic-typology context for the Smallwood-children-generation collection-holders: Great Lakes-region arrowheads from Livingston County are typically Woodland-period (1000 BCE to 1600 CE) or Archaic-period (8000 BCE to 1000 BCE) Indigenous material, from cultures ancestral to the Anishinaabe / Three Fires Confederacy. The "very valuable" piece is most plausibly either a fluted Paleoindian point (very rare, very early) or a Hopewell-tradition exotic-stone point (Ohio Hopewell trade network material would be unusual for Michigan).

15. The Civil War — occupation on the Eastern Shore, Confederate cavalry on the Donahoe side

(Substantively unchanged for the Eastern Shore portion; v2 corrects the Donahoe portion.) Susan and Paulette's Eastern Shore Virginia ancestors lived through the Civil War as occupied civilians, not as soldiers in either army. Lockwood's expedition occupied Accomac Court House and Eastville without resistance on 17–18 November 1861, and the Eastern Shore remained under Union control until war's end. The Bull, Kellam, Rogers, Boggs, Floyd, and Garrison ancestors of military age in 1861–65 (chiefly John K. Rodgers, b. 1823, age 38–42 across the war; and William Samuel Kellam, b. 1817, age 44–48) were almost certainly civilian throughout, operating under the oath-of-allegiance / property-protection terms of Lockwood's proclamation. Joseph Saples Bull (b. 1850) was a child of 11–15 throughout the war.

The 1860 Slave Schedule line-check for Bull, Kellam, Rogers, Boggs, Floyd, and Garrison surnames in Accomack and Northampton Counties is still pending Brady's logged-in browser session and is queued for v2.5. Edward S. Bull had died in 1856; his estate by 1860 would have been administered by his widow Susan Elizabeth Kellam Bull, and whether she held enslaved people in 1860 is a real open question for the Eastern Shore portion of the family record.

The Donahoe Civil War story is genuinely different and was misframed in v1. V1 speculated that mountain Scots-Irish families were Union-sympathizing. V2's deep-line research overturns that assumption. Brady's Donahoes are Confederate Scots-Irish, not Union Scots-Irish. Specifically:

- Alexander L. Donahoo — Brady's collateral ancestor, served in the 34th Virginia Cavalry Battalion (Witcher's Battalion), Co. A, and the 16th Virginia Cavalry, Co. H — both Confederate, both raised in Wayne County WV / VA and the southwestern WV–Kentucky-border zone.
- William Patrick Donahoe (b. 1842, prime military age 1861–1865) almost certainly served Confederate; his specific compiled service record needs to be pulled from NARA. He's most likely in one of the same Wayne-County-raised cavalry units.
- The post-war federal Test-Oath disfranchisement worked against this family, not for it.

The Civil War experience for Susan and Paulette is therefore split in two: the Eastern Shore Virginia branch lived through occupation as civilians, while the West Virginia Donahoe branch served Confederate from Wayne County. Both are honest pieces of the family record.

16. The Eastern Shore Native American story — adjacent context

(Unchanged from v1.) Susan's Eastern Shore ancestors farmed in southern Accomack, in a parish neighborhood that bordered the Gingaskin Reservation and the lands of the Accomac and Accohannock chiefdoms. The Gingaskin reservation at Indian Town in Northampton County was terminated by the General Assembly in 1813 — the first instance of legal allotment and detribalization of a Native reservation in U.S. history. Three-quarters of the allottees retained their lands until 1831, when most were forced out following the Nat Turner insurrection. The Bull-Kellam-Rogers-Boggs-Floyd-Garrison ground in southern Accomack and the Gingaskin/Indian Town ground in southern Northampton were neighbors for two centuries, fifteen miles apart in the same parish neighborhood.

Susan and Paulette's documented Native ancestor — Mary "Molly" Bays/Baze, per the family Bible — is recorded as Monacan (Eastern Siouan, upper James River), not Gingaskin or Accomac (Eastern Algonquian, Eastern Shore). The two are separate nations.

A second Native-ancestry claim, on Brady's father's Clark family side, is documented in the separate Monacan Heritage whitepaper. The two claims arrive in Brady through different parents (mother Susan and father Dennis Eugene Smallwood) and are independent.

17. What is uncertain in v2

(Carried forward from v1, updated where v2 closed or opened questions.)

Closed in v2: - ☒ Stephen Alexander Donahoe was the Methodist minister (autobiography + Western Virginia Conference 1891-92 record) - ☒ Bull line above Elijah extends to Tobias Bull I (d. 1687) - ☒ Dean line above Nathaniel extends to Walter Deane (Speedwell 1637) and William Deane (1568) - ☒ Caylor line traces to Johannes Kohler (Britannia 1767) - ☒ Donahoe migration corridor mapped: Augusta → eastern KY → Wayne WV → Fayette → Jackson → Eastern Shore VA - ☒ Donahoe Civil War service: Confederate (34th VA Cav Bn / 16th VA Cav) - ☒ Hugh Casslin Donaghe Sr. 1809 will pulled (Chalkley abstract); slaveholder confirmed 1770 - ☒ Joseph Saples Bull had two marriages; Susie Elizabeth Bull (1885–1963) is the most likely 1946–1955 Bull-farm grantor - ☒ Rev. Stephen Alexander Donahoe served Kanawha Falls 1891-92 in MEC South Western Virginia Conference - ☒ Read farm = 10084 Rushton Rd, Green Oak Township, Livingston County MI; NRHP-listed; Allie Read's wife was Harriet Driver - ☒ Mary Ellen was WAC (not WAVES)

Still open in v2 (carry to v3): - ☐ Lt. Samuel Black DAR direct-descent verification (needs Brady's logged-in FamilySearch browser) - ☐ 1860 Slave Schedule line-check on Bull / Kellam / Rogers / Boggs / Floyd / Garrison surnames in Accomack and Northampton (needs Brady's logged-in Ancestry/FamilySearch) - ☐ Mary Ellen (WAC) and Del (Korean War Army) NPRC service records — file SF-180 (turnaround weeks/months) - ☐ Hugh Casslin Donaghe Sr. 1809 manuscript will (Augusta County Will Book No. 8) and 1810 estate inventory — Chalkley is an abstract; manuscript would name enslaved people and specific land tracts - ☐ William Patrick Donahoe Confederate compiled service record (NARA pull) - ☐ Co. Down records search returned negative for Donaghe pre-1635; resolution requires Y-DNA Big-Y test on a male-line Donahoe descendant (~$449) - ☐ Coulbourne English origin: Yorkshire (Pontefract) candidate stronger than Somerset visitation; primary parish-register evidence at Pontefract still being pulled - ☐ Stephen Alexander Donahoe's post-1892 Methodist appointments and 1935 death record (West Virginia Wesleyan Methodist Archives — email Brett Miller) - ☐ Alvin Read identification (oral history with Susan and Paulette is the highest-leverage path) - ☐ Del Dean's siblings — full enumeration needs a 30-second pull of Roy Dean's FSID 2WFL-B1C profile from Brady's logged-in FamilySearch browser - ☐ The remaining children of Joseph Saples Bull (1850–1923) and Mary Eliza Rogers Bull (1878–1946) — 1900-1940 Accomack censuses + Mary Eliza's 1946 Accomack will would close - ☐ U of M arrowhead assessment record — Bentley Historical Library inquiry to bentley.ref@umich.edu - ?

Marjorie Fluor Moore memorandum (1983 transcription of Dr. Jacob Woodrum's Bible) - ? The "Caylor as Norman-English" family tradition vs. the documented German Palatine origin — paper record is German; family memory is Norman; both recorded honestly

18. Where Susan and Paulette can add (the v3 contribution)

V1's section 14 listed the family-memory questions only Susan and Paulette could close. Most of those were subsequently closed by Susan's autobiography and Brady's 2020 oral history with Mary Ellen — the two new primary sources loaded between v1 and v2. What remains open after v2 is a tighter list:

1. Alvin Read's name and biography. The autobiography and the 2020 oral history both recorded the inheritance-exclusion story without naming Alvin. Susan and Paulette may have heard a name. Even a partial name (a first-name-only "Alvin Smith from Howell" or similar) would be the path to closure.
2. The remaining Bull-side aunts and uncles (Joseph Saples Bull's children other than Fannye, Arthur Clyde, and Susie Elizabeth). Susan and Paulette likely knew or knew-of these cousins of Mary Ellen's; a recorded conversation enumerating them would close the question of who lost the Bull farm in the 1950s.
3. The Bull farm loss specifics. Did Mary Ellen ever say which sibling lost the parcel, or what the immediate trigger was — debt, foreclosure, voluntary sale to a developer, family dispute? Susan and Paulette likely heard a version.
4. Letters or papers from Paul "Dada" Donahoe. Paul wrote in beautiful long-flowing cursive script and kept active correspondence. Letters from Paul to Mary Ellen (1953–1979) may survive in family papers; if any survive, they may name his own parents and grandparents in ways that would extend the Donahoe line beyond Hugh M. Donahoe.
5. The "Caylor as Norman-English" family tradition. Susan wrote about it; where did the tradition come from? Was it from her grandmother Fannye, from Mary Ellen, from Lucinda Caylor's family record? The paper record is unambiguous (German Palatine), but the family-memory provenance of the alternative tradition matters for the family record itself.
6. Roy Dean's arrowhead collection — current location and condition. The Smallwood-children generation holds it. A photographic inventory of the points, plus a description of any surviving box or label that might tie back to the U of M assessment, would either confirm or close the U of M provenance question.

A focused recorded conversation between Brady and Susan and Paulette covering these six items is the highest-leverage v3 contribution.

19. Methodology

This v2 version was compiled by AI from the following sources:

- Brady's RootsMagic-synced GEDCOM (/Users/bs/Documents/Brady Family Tree.ged , 86,877 lines, last updated 6 May 2026), canonical for the first nine to ten generations
- The FamilySearch collaborative tree, accessed via Brady's logged-in account, used to extend the pedigree past the GEDCOM sync ceiling and to verify each colonial-period ancestor's relationship through the FamilySearch View Relationship calculator
- Susan Dean Elzey, The Story of My Life I update every five years (189-page autobiography, current copy synced March 2024) — first-person family memory back to roughly Mary Ellen's lifetime
- Brady Smallwood, oral history with Mary Ellen Donahoe Dean, 3 May 2020 — primary oral testimony from the subject (Brady's mother) three years before her death
- Susan Dean Elzey 7XMOM column corpus — 957 columns across 17 years (2009–2026, Danville Register & Bee), 1.1 million words; searched in v2 for deep-tree references
- Primary published sources: Whitelaw, Virginia's Eastern Shore (1951; Peter Smith reprint 1968); Wise, Ye Kingdome of Accawmacke (1911); Rountree and Davidson, Eastern Shore Indians of Virginia and Maryland (1997); Turman, The Eastern Shore of Virginia, 1603-1964 (1964); Mariner, Revival's Children (1979); Nottingham, Accomack County Tithables 1663–1695; Torrence, Old Somerset on the Eastern Shore of Maryland; the Maryland Historical Trust property file for Pomfret Plantation; William Mac. Jones, ed., The Douglas Register (1928); The Parish Register of Saint Peter's, New Kent County, Virginia from 1680 to 1787 (1904); Accomack County Court Order Abstracts, Volume 28, abstracted by JoAnn Riley McKey; Chalkley's Chronicles of the Scotch-Irish Settlement in Virginia (the Augusta County records); NEHGR 151:171–183 (Hyde and Plummer, 1997); Smith and Sanborn, The Ancestry of Eva Belle Kempton 1878–1908 (NEHGS 1996–2008); Alton Brooks Parker Barnes, Pungoteague to Petersburg (3 vols., 1988–1994); Graven Stones: Inscriptions from Lower Accomack County, Virginia (1987); Strassburger and Hinke, Pennsylvania German Pioneers; Caylor and Brown, Johannes Kohler's Family; Frederic Thomas Colby, Visitation of the County of Somerset in the Year 1623 (Harleian Society Vol. XI, 1876); the Library of Virginia EAD finding aids; the West Virginia Archives state-statehood-era loyalty oath records; the Minutes of the Annual Conferences of the MEC South 1891 General Conference compilation
- Fourteen parallel research streams spawned by the AI engine on 9 May 2026, each saved as a separate research file in `research/` (files 25 through 39, with one file numbered 39 because Brady had previously created file 25)

The methodology has continued to mature through v2. V1's methodological lesson — FamilySearch screenshots are a hypothesis, not a fact, until verified through the relationship-calculator descent path — was supplemented in v2 by a second principle: published abstract-level sources are a hypothesis, not a fact, until verified against the manuscript. Chalkley's abstract of Hugh Casslin Donaghe's 1809 will is internally consistent and useful for v2, but the manuscript will at Augusta County and the 1810 estate inventory would name enslaved people and specific land tracts that the abstract omits. V3 should pull both.

20. Closing note

The version 2 picture of Susan Caylor Dean and Paulette Dean's ancestry is materially deeper than version 1:

A maternal Eastern Shore Virginia line of nearly 290 years' continuous ground tenure on the same Pungoteague Creek parcel — from the 1666 Northampton tithables of John and Thomas Bulluck through the Tobias Bull I will of 1687, through eight generations of Bulls, Kellams, Rogerses, Boggses, Floyds, and Garrisons farming the same Pennyville/Onley/Melfa triangle, until the structural collapse of Eastern Shore truck farming in the 1950s and the loss of the parcel in the years between 1946 and 1955.

A documented Revolutionary War Patriot — Capt. William H. Parker of Accomack County, militia captain 1777–1781 — whose service is recorded verbatim in the Accomack County court order books and whose descent path to Susan and Paulette is intact through eight intermediate generations. A Daughters of the American Revolution application is filable.

A family-tradition Native American (Monacan) ancestor — Mary “Molly” Bays/Baze Woodrum — whose tribal identification is recorded in a family Bible held by Dr. Jacob Woodrum of Tennessee, and whose Mowhemenchó birthplace is geographically consistent with the period of Monacan presence on the upper James River. Honestly framed as family tradition, not primary-source verification.

Two Great Migration 1637 immigrant ancestors on Susan and Paulette's father's-mother's side, married together one generation later — Anthony Fisher Sr. on the Rose (June 1637) and Walter Deane on the Speedwell (April 1637) — whose grandchildren Nathaniel Dean (Stonington CT 1693) and Johanna Fisher (Dedham MA 1686) merged the two Pilgrim-stock founder lines through their 1716 marriage.

A Welsh-origin Northampton County immigrant of 1660 (John Floyd I “of Hog Island”), whose probable father Nathaniel Floyd arrived on the Bona Nova before February 1624/5.

A Pomfret Plantation founder and Quaker host to George Fox (Col. William Coulbourne, 1630–1689), whose English origin remains uncertain — Yorkshire (Pontefract) candidate currently stronger than the Somerset visitation pedigree v1 cited.

An Ulster-origin patriarch (James Donaghe of Kilkeel, Co. Down, 1635) carrying Brady's mother's Donahoe surname forward — though v2's targeted search of every surviving Co. Down primary source returned a clean negative; the Ulster origin is recorded but not proven, and a Y-DNA Big-Y test on a male-line Donahoe descendant remains the path to definitive resolution.

A substantial Augusta County, Virginia patriarch (Hugh Casslin Donaghe Sr., 1728–1809), whose 1809 will is now pulled from Chalkley's abstract — naming wife Anne Usher, five children, a grandson, executor Archibald Stuart, with 1,500-plus acres on Naked Creek and confirmed slaveholding by 1770.

A Methodist Episcopal Church South pastor in the Western Virginia Conference (Rev. Stephen Alexander Donahoe, b. 1866 – d. 1935), whose first appointment at Kanawha Falls in 1891–92 four river miles from his Gauley Bridge marriage to Leona Rollyson explains Mary Ellen's lifelong Methodism.

A Confederate cavalry grand-uncle (Alexander L. Donahoo, 34th Virginia Cavalry Battalion Co. A, 16th Virginia Cavalry Co. H) — the documented Civil War service on Brady's mother's side, contradicting v1's speculation that mountain Scots-Irish families were Union-sympathizing.

A German Palatine immigrant (Johannes Kohler on the Britannia, Philadelphia, 25 October 1767), whose four-generation migration corridor brought the Caylor surname through Pennsylvania → Shenandoah Valley → southwest Virginia → eastern Kentucky → Cabell-Wayne West Virginia, where Lucinda Caylor was born 1845.

A Famine-Irish Catholic line (Helena Daly through Daly + Donovan from Ballincolly and Durrus, Co. Cork; Welsh-origin Arundel from Pembrokeshire) on Brady's father's mother's side.

A family inheritance story (Editha Read Dean, the out-of-wedlock son Alvin, the inheritance exclusion by her parents Albert and Addie Read, the Read farm at 10084 Rushton Rd National Register-listed) inherited through Mary Ellen's 2020 oral history.

The honest version of Susan and Paulette's heritage is now substantially richer than version 1, and substantially more sourced. What remains open — the hard pulls listed in section 17 — has been kept honest. Version 2 reflects what the record currently supports.

Changelog: v1 → v2

Resolved or substantially extended:

- Bull line above Elijah Bull → Tobias Bull I (1687); 289-year continuous Bull family ground tenure (file 30)
- Dean line above Nathaniel Dean → Walter Deane Speedwell 1637, William Deane (1568) South Chard Somerset; six new generations (file 27)
- Caylor line resolved to Johannes Kohler Britannia 1767 immigrant; full migration corridor PA → Shenandoah → SW VA → eastern KY → WV (file 28)
- Donahoe migration corridor mapped: Augusta → eastern KY → Wayne WV → Fayette → Jackson → Eastern Shore VA (file 29)
- Hugh Casslin Donaghe Sr.'s 1809 will pulled (Chalkley abstract); wife Anne Usher, 5 children, slaveholder 1770 (file 39)
- Rev. Stephen Alexander Donahoe Methodist ministry: Kanawha Falls 1891-92 MEC South Western Virginia Conference (file 33)
- Read farm located: 10084 Rushton Rd Green Oak Twp Livingston Co MI; NRHP Alonzo W. Olds / Albert Read House; Allie's wife Harriet Driver; full enumeration of Loren / Lois / Leslie (file 34)
- Bull-side aunts and uncles partly enumerated: Joseph Sables Bull's two marriages, half-siblings Arthur Clyde Bull and Susie Elizabeth Bull (the most likely 1946-1955 farm grantor) (file 38)
- 7XMOM corpus surfaced: Mary Ellen as WAC (not WAVES), Fannye's middle name = Rogers, family Caylor-as-Norman-English tradition, 1852 Read-immigrant cactus still in Susan's living room (file 32)
- Susan's autobiography surfaced: Stephen Alexander Donahoe = Methodist minister; Paul Donahoe Civil Service at Cherry Point NC; Uncle Billy Donahoe's biographical detail; Joe + Nancye + Harper + Stephen Donahoe family identified (file 23)
- Mary Ellen 2020 oral history surfaced: Editha Read's son Alvin out of wedlock; inheritance exclusion; Allie's first cousins Loren / Lois / Leslie Read; Roy Dean's arrowhead collection at U of M; Editha pronounced short-e (file 24)

Corrected:

- Donahoe family Civil War service: Confederate (Alexander L. Donahoo in 34th VA Cav Bn / 16th VA Cav), not Union as v1 speculated (file 29)
- William Patrick (not Penn) Donahoe — corrected from v1 (file 29)
- James H. Donahoe (1806) is grandson of Hugh Casslin (not son); Hugh M. Donnahoe (1783–1845) is the intermediate generation (file 29)

- Coulbourne English origin: Yorkshire (Pontefract) candidate stronger than the 1623 Somerset visitation chain v1 reproduced as English tradition (file 26)
- Pilgrim-stock immigrant on Brady's tree: TWO Great Migration 1637 ancestors (Walter Deane on the Speedwell alongside Anthony Fisher Sr. on the Rose), not just one (file 27)
- Donaghe pre-1635 Co Down: clean negative result; the Plantation-Scots-Lowland reading is no longer the most-likely; Catholic Mac Donnchaidh from Tyrone/Derry is now competitive (file 31)

Carried forward unchanged:

- Col. William Coulbourne, Richard Kellam II, Capt. William H. Parker, John Floyd I, Anthony Fisher Sr., Mary Bays/Baze Woodrum (Mowhemencho), Famine-Irish Daly + Donovan + Welsh-origin Arundel, Eastern Shore occupation Civil War experience, the Shawnee Heritage fraud retraction, the cousin-only relationships to Lt. Col. Richard Cocke and Joane Pierce (still cousin only, not direct ancestors)

Still open at v2 (carry to v3):

- Lt. Samuel Black DAR direct-descent verification (Brady's logged-in FamilySearch browser)
- 1860 Slave Schedule line-check on Eastern Shore surnames (Brady's logged-in browser)
- Mary Ellen + Del NPRC service records (SF-180)
- Hugh Casslin Donaghe Sr. manuscript will + 1810 estate inventory (Augusta courthouse / LVA pull)
- William Patrick Donahoe Confederate compiled service record (NARA pull)
- Ulster Donaghe Y-DNA Big-Y test (~$449 FTDNA on a male-line Donahoe descendant)
- Coulbourne English origin: Pontefract parish-register evidence
- Stephen Alexander Donahoe post-1892 appointments + 1935 death record (West Virginia Wesleyan Methodist Archives)
- Alvin Read identification (oral history with Susan + Paulette)
- Del Dean's siblings full enumeration (Brady's logged-in browser)
- Remaining Joseph Saples Bull children (1900-1940 Accomack censuses + 1946 Mary Eliza will)
- U of M arrowhead assessment record (Bentley Historical Library inquiry)
- Marjorie Fluor Moore 1983 memorandum

Source files: research files 00–39 in the project folder, plus source folder containing Brady’s GEDCOM, the AncestryDNA raw, the Susan Elzey autobiography PDF, the FamilySearch deep-line walk transcripts, and the Mary Ellen 2020 oral history. v2 explicitly carries forward v1’s section structure with substantive additions in sections 1 (headline), 3 (Bull line), 5 (Coulbourne English origin), 9 (Donahoe — three new sub-sections), 10 (Dean line), 13 (Caylor line, NEW), 14 (Read line, NEW), 15 (Civil War — Donahoe Confederate sub-section).